World Ecitizens

Sharing cultural diversity

World Ecitizens (WE) aim to encourage understanding between peoples and communities and to share the fascinating diversity within nations and across the world. WE take responsibility for our actions and strive to make the world a better place.

The WE web based learning environment is a rich resource for educational collaboration in topics such as responsible citizenship, mutual respect, combating social injustice and conflict prevention and resolution. WE participants can build projects together, join in debates and develop electronic portfolios. Young participants achieve World Ecitizen status when they publish a contribution to the WE gallery and receive a certificate,

Giving young people a voice

Since January 2003 communities and classes of young people in the UK have presented posters, video clips and comic strips about citizenship issues that concern them. Some of the young people have been working with artists and writers in residence. So far homelessness and international citizenship have emerged as major areas of concern.

WE now invite young people all over the world to share this web space by creating written statements, illustrations, video clips, comic strips and digital photographs that promote their ideals and aspirations for citizenship - one screen to make their point. WE welcome contributions in any language.

If you want to involve your class or community please email enquiries@worlddecitizens.net. You can start by publishing as a group or we will help you find WE partners.

WE also offers a learning environment where young people can build projects together in a safe web space. Community leaders and teachers are invited to ask Francis Howlett about working in this space: email francis@worlddecitizens.net.

The WE journal

Peer support for leaders

The WE ejournal is a gateway where WE community leaders and teachers can share ideas for developing humanitarian projects using ICT as a bridge. Leaders who publish in the WE journal achieve a Fellowship in World Ecitizenship for using elearning to draw the peoples of the world together. If you would like to participate in this world collaboration, have notice of conferences or learn more about WE online courses email enquiries@worldcitizens.net.
